

Section Two - Outdoor challenge

I had already completed my 'Going Away With Licence', which completes Element One for you. For my exploration, I wanted to do something really purposeful which would have a continual impact, instead of just a one-off.

As a teacher, I decided that I would create a scheme of work for my class's next topic: The Great Fire of London. My peers and I spent the exploration in London, visiting all of the landmarks integral to the understanding of the fire. We took photographs, collected leaflets, explored museums and bought artefacts - anything to bring this history to life and help to engage the 30 five year olds in my class. I have been able to use my resources over and over and the children benefitted immensely by gaining a closer understanding of our Country's history.
